Handling A “Choosy” Eater

What would you do?
• Sara-Mei won’t eat anything green – she even refuses a whole meal if one green pea appears on her plate.
• Santiago is interested in everything at the table BUT eating.
• Dillion gets upset when one food on his plate touches another.
• Mariffa won’t eat anything but an orange or a banana; two days ago she’d only eat peanut butter sandwiches.

“Choosy” eating is a child-size step toward growing up and showing independence.
In fact, what seems like a challenge to you may be an early step toward making food choices. A child’s “No” doesn’t always mean no. What seems “choosy” may just be your child’s awkward first steps in learning to make decisions.

What appears to be “choosy” eating may instead be a smaller appetite.
Preschool-age children grow and develop at a slower rate than toddlers do. If left alone, most children become hearty eaters again when their body’s growth pattern requires more food for energy.

The best advice for you: relax and be patient!
Learn how to handle eating challenges and how to avoid conflict. That way, your child won’t learn to use food as a way to exert control.

Ten Effective Ways To Handle a “Choosy” Eater

1. Treat food jags casually since food jags don’t last long anyway.
2. Consider what a child eats over several days not just at each meal. Most kids eat more food variety than a parent thinks.
3. Trust your child’s appetite rather than force a child to eat everything on the plate. Forcing a child to eat more encourages overeating.
4. Set reasonable time limits for the start and end of a meal then remove the plate quietly. What’s reasonable depends on each child.
5. Stay positive and avoid criticizing or calling any child a “picky eater.” Children believe what you say!
Handling A “Choosy” Eater

6 Serve food plain, and respect the “no foods touching” rule if that’s important to your child. This will pass.

7 Avoid being a short-order cook by offering the same food for the whole family. Plan at least one food everyone will eat.

8 Substitute a similar food - if a child doesn’t like a certain food, maybe sweet potatoes, instead offer squash.

9 Provide just two or three choices not a huge array of food. Then let your child decide.

10 Focus on your child’s positive eating behavior not on the food.
