This is an important committee in discussing issues and passing on recommendations to the State Board. In my five years on the committee, I have found this committee to be a unique group of individuals with varied backgrounds and offer varied views of the issues we are charged to consider. I think I am just getting comfortable in understanding the role of our committee and how it works. I feel I have that understanding now and will continue to be a more effective member in this next term. It is extremely important to have a wide range of opinions on different issues to come to consensus on recommendations to the State Board that are well thought out and would be of benefit to students in all areas of the State. I want to represent Western Nebraska, School Board Members statewide, and the Rural Schools across the State, while at the same time understanding the unique situations of my urban friends.

EDUCATIONAL PHILOSOPHY

My philosophy of education has been shaped by over three decades of experience as an elementary teacher, program coordinator of a large Title I Cooperative that received national recognition as an exemplary project and in depth work with Staff Development and School Improvement. I strongly believe that the system of public education we have today has served our country well but must be transformed by implementation of learning communities that are highly collaborative and accountable. Dramatic school improvement will only occur when effective leadership supports collaborative communities of adult learners that are highly engaged in a continuous effort to improve schools.

Intermediate Agencies are poised to play a significant role in current School Improvement efforts and the implementation of Standards and Accountability. As this role clarifies and emerges, I feel it is essential that Intermediate Agencies become adept at finding correlational connections to student achievement. Only when service agencies can connect programs and services to the data that demonstrates that students can read, write, and understand Better, will they become a recognized and honored partner of the educational process? This is why I have, at this point in my career, become so interested in the emerging literature on the evaluation of staff development and the potential impact it holds to significantly change schools to accommodate all learners.

ACCOMPLISHMENTS

My work experience has allowed me to be involved in many statewide projects for the state of Nebraska and the Educational Service Unit System. I was active in the development of the Statewide School Improvement and Staff Development efforts that serve Nebraska schools today; efforts that are currently assisting Nebraska Schools with the implementation of NCLB, State Standards and Assessment. In addition to these projects, I am currently involved in the development of an accreditation and accountability process for the statewide Educational Service Unit network.
