

Dr. Nicole Swoszowski is an assistant professor at the University of Alabama in the Department of Special Education and Multiple Abilities Program. Dr. Swoszowski's research focuses on evaluating positive and preventative academic and social interventions and practices for students with emotional and behavioral disorders and other behavior challenges, implementation of multi-tiered behavioral frameworks in traditional and nontraditional educational settings, and teacher preparation in classroom and behavior management. Dr. Swoszowski has trained positive behavior support leadership teams across the southeast and teaches numerous courses on classroom and behavior management at the University of Alabama. Dr. Swoszowski serves currently as a member of the Publications Committee of the Council for Children with Behavioral Disorders (CCBD) division of CEC.