Yes

Prospective teachers are prepared to effectively teach in urban and rural schools, as applicable.

Yes

Describe your institution's most successful strategies in meeting the assurances listed above:

1. Midland University seeks partner school administrators, school faculty and others with relevant school experiences to serve on its advisory committee. Student Teaching Seminar includes a session on ethics of the teaching profession and requires Student Teachers to interview the building principal regarding school policies and building practices. In addition, MU maintains communication with area districts regarding teaching needs and hosts an interview fair for MU Student Teachers.
2. Students are required to complete a minimum of 100 hours of field-based experiences (FBE). These hours are part of core and endorsement coursework, beginning in the EDU190 Topics in Education course and continuing through other courses that lead to the student teaching experience. FBE for education students is developmental, building on previous experiences and increasing in responsibility and interaction with P-12 learners.
3. Elementary and Special Education K-6 majors complete elementary methodology coursework. Special Education K-12 majors completes elementary reading and social studies methods. Special Education 7-12 majors complete secondary methods coursework and a content endorsement.
4. Students in EDU190 are given an overview of working with students with varying disabilities that emphasizes special needs students are part of almost every classroom in a school building. All teacher education students are required to complete EDU296 Introduction to Special Education. EDU255 Introduction to Early Childhood covers working with ECE-SPED children. Teacher education students learn about an IFSP and visit early childhood special education facilities. In methods courses, students write lesson plans with accommodations and modifications and discuss differentiated instruction for students.
5. Students in EDU190 are given an overview of working with students with limited English proficiencies and have the opportunity to observe an ESL classroom as well as speak with an ESL instructor about his/her experiences. In EDU340 effective reading strategies for ESL students are identified and discussed. Many of the classrooms in Fremont that are used for FBE serve the ESL population. FLA100 Introduction to English as a Second Language is offered to all education students. Secondary students enroll in EDU381 Reading and Writing in the Content Area, a course that includes an FBE with an ESL student.

6. Students in EDU190 are given an overview of working with students from low income families and have the opportunity to visit a school where an elementary counselor describes the challenges that many of our young students face when they come from families confronted with poverty. Students in EDU275 Classroom Management study how poverty affects student learning and achievement and how poverty affects the way families interact with schools. EDU255 students learn about working with families, the different structures of families, and how poverty might affect a student's performance in a classroom. Both EDU388 Elementary Social Studies Methods and EDU340 Developmental Reading cover curricular issues that might arise when working with "at-risk" students.

7. Students enrolled in EDU220 Multicultural Education are placed in a field-experience in a North or South Omaha school. During this time, they observe and support learning in the classroom in a variety of ways. Many students teach a lesson or a portion of a lesson, read to students, work with small groups or participate in other appropriate ways. Students engage in university classroom conversations about dehumanizing biases, interpersonal relations, respect for human dignity and individual rights and the ability to relate effectively to other individuals and to groups in a pluralistic society.

The MU Education Department offers three grade levels of the special education mild/moderate disabilities endorsement: K-6, K-12 and 7-12.
