

the good news series

Between school, work, and everything else life throws at us, stress can really start weighing on everyone from teachers to students. York Public Schools have found relief from that stress with therapy dogs.

The following video is a special Good News produced by the Nebraska Department of Education with special thanks to York Public Schools.